COUNCIL ORDERS INCINERATING PLANT PUT IN BEST OF SHAPE

Investigation of Garbage
Question Taken up at Specially Called Meeting

BURGESS HEARS SOME CASES

All Accused Offenders Discharged—
Council in Meeting Gives Attention
To Matters of Importance in the Borough

Council ordered the work of repairing the garbage furnace completed as rapidly as possible and issued instructions Friday night at a specially called meeting to garbage haulers to dump garbage for the present on the Berryman lot. There it is to be burned and lime scattered.

The specially called meeting was for the consideration chiefly of the garbage questions. Hauler Harry Perry failed to put in appearance. Councilman H. L. Swickey of the garbage committee reported that grate bars were in bad shape at the furnace so that the furnace could not be well used. New bars are expected to come shortly and they will be installed at once.

Previous to the meeting of council several appeared before Burgess Woodward upon information of Health Officer William Darby to answer charges to dumping refuse on private property and in an unhealthy way near the garbage furnace, without having it incinerated. All were discharged when it was explained that the custom was general. The garbage hauler was blamed for starting it.

Council took up other matters. One of them was in regard to a sewer to a property on Shady avenue near Sixth street. The property owner desired connections through another lot with a sewer from Apple alley. Council decided the connection could not be made and gave the street committee power to act in the matter.

Report was made of a visit earlier Friday evening to Third street and Crest avenue where P. Moore speaks to have his property raised. This matter was placed in the hands of the accounts and claims committee to confer with the borough solicitor and report back to council.

CLAIM MADE TO HEAVY DAMAGES

Woman Sues West Penn
Power Co. in Sum of $35,-
000 For Husband's Death

DETAILS OF CASE STATED

Mrs. Charlotte McKenna, whose husband, Thomas McKenna, was killed when he came in contact with a high tension electric wire at the plant of the Henderson Coal company in Cecil township on June 13, 1915, has filed a suit against the West Penn Power company, successor to the West Penn Lighting company, in which she claims $35,000 damages. The action is brought in behalf of herself and three children, Frances, Charlotte and Gerald.

The defendant company supplied power to the Henderson Coal company. It was carried from a high tension wire of the defendant company into a transformer house by way of a pole or wire support near the transformer house. Upon this pole and outside the transformer house there was installed by the defendant company an aerial switch operated by means of a chain extending down to a point where it could be reached by a person standing on the ground.

It was at the time when Mr. McKenna was preparing to operate this aerial switch, by means of the chain, that he received an electric shock which resulted in his instant death. It is claimed that the defendant company was negligent in not erecting this switch, so that it could be operated in a safe manner. It is averred there was no other means for cutting the current from the transformer house; that there was no choke coil, condenser, automatic switch in oil or other device for the purpose of guarding against excess of current on the lines; that there was no switch within the house whereby in case of need the current could be cut off without the necessity of operating the alleged more exposed and dangerous outside aerial switch; that no insulated platform nor dry hemp ropes were provided for the safe operation of this switch and that the pole was so located that it stood in a depression in the ground, in which water collected during rains, making the operation of the switch more dangerous.

Mr. McKenna at the time he was killed, was 44 years of age and was earning a salary of $150 as a master mechanic with the Henderson Coal company.

DREW NAMED COACH AT LOCAL HIGH SCHOOL

Washington & Jefferson Star Secured—Charles P. McCormick is Elected Teacher of Science—
Blackboard Contract Awarded

Percy E. Drew, a star player of last season's Washington and Jefferson college football team and this year's track captain was Friday night elected extra teacher and athletic coach of the Charleroi high school to take the place of Coach Joseph L. Gulaniec, resigned. Charles P. McCormick of the Bentleyville schools was elected teacher of science in the high school. Both Mr. Drew and Mr. McCormick comes highly recommended.

Mr. Drew's home is in Detroit. He is a member of this year's graduating class at Washington and Jefferson and one of the best known men in the school. He developed wonderfully under Folwell's coaching in football and ranked as one of the best men on the team.

Mr. McCormick has been at Bentleyville for some years and has brought the high school there up to a high state of efficiency.

The contract for placing slate blackboards at the Second street school building was awarded to C. K. Chalfant of Speers. Up until this time painted wood blackboards have been used. The new boards will be placed at once.

DEMOCRATIC TROUBLES APPROACH A CLIMAX

Anyhow Two Disagree. Forcibly, and to Such an Extent That They Are Hailed Before Another Democrat.
The Burgess

The warmest thing in politics is Democratic factionalism—anyhow so it would seem from an occurrence of late Friday afternoon on Fallowfield avenue, with the principals being Postmaster J. K. Smith and E. H. Arrison. They had a pleasing or displeasing, according to the point of view, disturbance—yezzir, they came to blows. Then Burgess S. L. Woodward, a Democratic leader in Washington county had to fine them both for "fighting on the street." Each paid into the borough exchequer the sum of $3 and that was about all there was to it, save a lot of laughing and kidding.

Postoffice affairs are said to have been at the bottom of the argument. It is said that the two have not been agreeing any too much on certain matters relating to the inner conduct of the office for some time and affairs reached their climax Friday. Both are Democratic leaders, and from a Republican bidseye view appear to have been bothered a trifle—just a trifle—by factional spats in the county as well as borough. Burgess Woodward listened to both tales, but declined to commit himself and his beliefs to the public at the hearing Friday evening and contented himself and others concerned by imposing the customary fine.

Tigers Again Winners
The Charleroi Tigers defeated the Ninth Street Stars in a ball game this morning that was featured with plenty of scoring, the Tigers crossing 22 times while the Stars got 13 runs.

At Washington a marriage license has been granted to Miss Angel Veronica Brunelle and Jacob J. Oravitz, both of Charleroi.

It was stated that it stood in a depression in the ground, in which water collected during rains, making the operation of the switch more dangerous.

Mr. McKenna at the time he was killed, was 44 years of age and was earning a salary of $150 as a master mechanic with the Henderson Coal company.

FLOATS MOVED AND BATHING
BEACH IS NOW IN CONDITION

Beach Now Presents Splendid Appearance—Flowers and Trees Add
Wonderfully to Scene.

Floats are being moved and final arrangements made for the season at the Charleroi Bathing beach today and only warmer weather is necessary to popularize bathing. Formally the beach is open.

Success has so far attended the efforts of the Charleroi Bathing Beach Association to get the beach in the finest kind of shape for the season. Visitors have been charmed by the appearance of the beach, with its flower beds and trees. The liberal application of whitewash to the stocks of the trees has enhanced their appearance. So far the water is cool, but only a little warming of the atmosphere will put it in good condition.

BAFFLING CASE COMES TO END

Michael E. Yohe of Monongahela Dies—Illness Was Puzzle to Physicians

WAS WIDELY KNOWN CITIZEN

Michael E. Yohe, a well known carpenter of Monongahela son of Louis Yohe of the contracting firm of Yohe & Yohe, died Friday evening at 8:30 o'clock. He was found lying unconscious on the street Wednesday midnight and was removed to the Memorial hospital, Monongahela. He never regained consciousness and the physicians were never able to discover what was the cause of his condition.

He quit work on the new municipal building Wednesday afternoon complaining of a severe headache and stating that he was going to see a doctor. He visited his mother-in-law and then disappeared until found at midnight.

Besides the parents, he is survived by his wife and three children, Harold, Donald and Sarah Marian. Two brothers, George and Percy, and one sister, Miss Elsie, also survive.

The funeral services will be held Sunday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at the home of his parents. Interment will be in the Monongahela cemetery.

Italian Shot Down—Declines

IS ONE AMONG A SERIES

White Slave Fued Believed to be at Bottom of Affair—Other Shootings
Occur at Monessen and New Kensington Within Recent Date

Resulting it is believed from a feud among Italian operators of an alleged white slave traffic working through Monessen, the murder of Tony Tolimani, aged 23 years took place Friday night shortly before midnight on Third street, Monessen. His shooting was one of a series of similar occurrences that is puzzling the police.

Shots were heard by persons living in the vicinity of Third street at about 11 o'clock. While they rushed toward the viaduct from where the shots flashed they saw a man running over Third street hill. Then the prostrate body of Tolimani was found. Tolimani was unconscious but regained consciousness and was hurried to the Memorial hospital at Monongahela. One bullet wound was in his shoulder and another in his breast. From the latter wound he died this morning at 8:30 o'clock.

During his conscious moments Tolimani was asked if he knew who did the shooting. He declined to make any statement whatever or to voice any accusations. Mystery surrounds the affair.

It is rumored that white slave traffic has been carried on among Italians at Monessen and that during the last few months there has been a feud among some of the principals. Not long ago an Italian was shot to death about a block from the police station there. The man who did the shooting was never found. Shortly after this occurrence a shooting occurred at New Kensington and a Monessen man was concerned. Other similar affairs are reported to have occurred within the past year or two, with the same mystery surrounding them all.

BAPTISTS FURTHER WAR AGAINST LIQUOR TRADE

Resolutions Adopted to that Effect At
One of the Closing Sessions of Pittsburg Association Meeting at Monessen

Resolutions furthering the fight against liquor, approving the child labor laws and to stop denominational leakage were adopted by the Pittsburg Baptist Association in one of the closing sessions at its seventy-seventh annual convention Friday at Monessen.

The five-year program of the Association was explained. Among other things the association is asking for an addition of a million members in five years and for 5,000 missionaries.

The convention favored increasing the missionary endowment three millions, bringing it up to approximately $6,000,000.

In the evening program a symposium was conducted by the Baptist Young People's Union. Various talks were given. In the afternoon session Rev. Wheeler Boggs described his work as a missionary in India.

UNROMANTIC CRIME

There are a few murder cases, involving young people, which are supposed to be love affairs. The most recent case is that in Philadelphia, Pa., where a young man, under arrest charged with the murder of his sweetheart. He explains her death while in his company, saying that they had entered into a suicide pact and that the girl, electing to go first, actually took her life by shooting herself through the head, falling dead at the man's feet. Though he had furnished the bullet for the deed he declares that what it came his time to carry out the terms of the compact a belt buckle intercepted the bullet and his life was saved.

Comment on a crime so sordid and pitiful, says the Pittsburgh Gazette Times is only necessary in order to point out the stupidity of such defenses as this man puts forth and how little it accords with the idea of a desperate romance in which two people prefer to leave the world together rather than live in it alone. Such tragedies are not uncommon in the field of fictional literature of a few years ago and there are a number of well authenticated cases in which they have actually occurred in life, under circumstances resembling the lurid examples of heroes and heroines of romancers.

But not even this rather doubtful justification for such shocking violation of the laws of God and man can be found in the recent instances where the living partner to the alleged romance lives to shift the blame to the shoulders of his victim. To attempt to throw a glamour of sentiment around such vicious evidences of criminal stupidity and selfishness is to poison the minds of the young and establish a false standard of value in matters of genuine romance. Whatever may be determined as to the guilt or innocence of the men now charged with murder in the two cases cited there is enough on the surface to prove instead of self-sacrificing devotion of two romantic lovers we have only to deal with young criminals who are utterly lacking in manliness or even in the elements of decent character, while the pleas of self-defense are without the least shred of sentiment worthy the compassion of normal men and women.

THE LUXURIOUS LIFE.

Moralists and economists alike chide us for our tendencies to the luxurious life, charging much of existing vice to this cause. Americans of the present do spend their lives in the presence of such magnificence as Solomon in all his glory never dreamed of. Our humblest home has in its conveniences and comforts the last generation might have imagined, but never enjoyed, says the Omaha Bee.

All our way through life is padded by triumphs of man's ingenuity and all conditions urge us on to more and more pleasure. We do not work as long hours as we did once, for we now have the advantage of those who prepared the way for us, and our material prosperity comes easily. Naturally we want it all, but equally in accord with a rule of nature, some have more than others. Out of this condition grows discontent, thriving on envy. Philosophers tell us the real reward of life does not consist in worldly wealth. If that is your standard of measurement, it is readily obtained.

One rule only is to be observed—consume less than you create and the hoarded surplus becomes your wealth.

If reports are true and the county controller means business, a precedent in the establishment of pay will be set in this county that in the future may prove rather embarrassing. The report is that the controller refused to honor the pay slip of a girl stenographer and voucher clerk in the commissioner's office, alleging that by reason of inexperience she was not as valuable as the one who immediately preceded her. In the girl's legal action she states the county is owing her one month's pay. Of course an employee inexperienced in the routine of the office into which he or she is placed cannot be as efficient for the time being as one who knows the ins and outs, but custom makes no allowance for the fact. If it did every county officer from the highest paid elective employee down to the lowest paid office boy would have to go on probation, without salary, until he learned his job. The wonder of it is if the precedent is established, how will it affect future controllers, judges, and so forth?

By launching its two-year campaign for $50,000 for the erection of new church buildings where there are none or where new ones are needed, the association does not believe in its constituent parts dipping too deeply in debt and yet feels that the cause should have representation befitting of the leading Protestant denominations of the land. The fund will be parcelled out as the association deems wise, presuming it is raised and part of it will be devoted to work in Charleroi, part to Donora, to Jeannette and so on. Cheapness or the least evidence of it will be discouraged. This association does not believe its cause can be best carried on unless on consistent principals, which means the church keeping up with the spirit of the times.

ELECTRIC SPARKS

It appears that getting elected a delegate to the national convention was somewhat of a cinch compared with acting the part now.

Air castles have some value. If it wasn't for them we probably never would get a start.

The most conspicuous thing about the Chicago convention has been the number of times it has caught itself crossing itself on the Hughes-Roosevelt contention.

PICKED UP IN PASSING

"I notice," said the genial agent, "that your office boy spends a great deal of his time sharpening pencils. Now, I shall let me tell you one of our patent pencil sharpeners the boy picked up at that time to some other day."

"The pencil man," I mildly inquired, "is a happy man."

"That's a happy man," he said, "but not a happy boy. When he is sharpening pencils, he is sharpening his own mind."

H. T. Webster, the cartoonist, asks according to Roy E. Meuldon if we know the speaker who always pulls these things.

"Now, I don't want to bore you with a long-winded speech—and so on for five minutes of this."

"I have suffered too often myself to make this mistake—'et cetera' for ten minutes more."

"I even went so far as to invent a contrivance to stop long speeches. By pulling a string a bag containing ether drops over the speaker's head and he is carried out unconscious," continuing the ghastly attempt at humor for ten minutes.

"Once heard a man get up at banquet and declare that he had nothing to say. The applause was deafening. This reminds me of an incident that occurred at the American Consulate in Shanghai. It seems that a loquacious tourist called on our Consul—twenty minutes of this."

"Now the subject I have selected to speak on this evening involves considerable detail and statistics. I shall endeavor, however, to—"

Nature's Fish Culture.

Newly formed ponds of water, cut off from all communication with rivers, brooks and lakes, are often found, of a sudden, to contain fish, the favorite explanatory theory being that fish eggs are carried thither by birds, either in their food or clinging to the legs of waders, the crane, heron, bittern and the like.

Nitrogen.

One of nature's methods of fixing nitrogen is familiar to everyone, but does not seem to have suggested itself to chemists as one to be imitated. When water trickles through the earth in which there is much organic matter and oozes out through the mortar of a wall, the wall becomes incriminated with pure niter, or saltpeter. What has happened is this: The water has dissolved much of the potassium in the soil and picked up millions of the nitrifying bacteria in the earth and carried them through the mortar, in which there is much lime. The potassium deposited on the wall is exposed to the air and the nitrifying bacteria begin to draw from this the nitrogen which combines with the potassium to make niter.

The Irish Potato.

The Irish potato is a native of South America; was introduced into Spain in the early part of the sixteenth century, and into England by Sir Walter Raleigh in 1583; was regarded at first as a curiosity, and its use as an article of food made slow progress. In 1693 the Royal Society of London recommended it as a possible safeguard against famine among the Irish peasantry, but the British Encyclopedia says that "its cultivation in England made but little progress, even though it was strongly urged by the Royal Society, and not much more than a century has elapsed since its cultivation on a large scale became general." It is sometimes called the Irish potato because it is a favorite article of food in Ireland. The failure of the crop in Ireland several years, especially in 1845, caused famine, which was followed by disease, from which many thousands died. In 1855 an international potato exhibition was held at the Crystal Palace, London, and in 1856 the three hundredth year of the introduction of the potato into England was celebrated at Westminster.

GIVES ADVICE TO HUSBANDS

Writer Offers the Suggestion That More Men Should Occasionally Praise Their Wives.

Apparently there are some men in the world who would not be likely to live long if by any possibility they should be betrayed into praising their wives, remarks the Philadelphia Inquirer.

The man of this description is a selfish, egotistical creature, who evidently believes that creation was instituted for his benefit. He is a little surprised and a good deal annoyed that things were not arranged more to his liking, but he tolerates the arrangement, not because he approves of it, but because he cannot help it.

The wife of this man is a woman whom no old maid should envy. And no old maid should ever marry this man, when his wife is worn out and laid in the grave; if she does she will never see her husband again—that is, unless she has backbone enough to put the man where he belongs and keep him there. And it is never pleasant to any true-hearted woman to feel that she has to master her husband in order to live comfortably with him.

The man who never praises his wife will find fault with everything on every possible occasion. It is the easiest thing in the world to find fault—easier than the proverbial sliding down hill. It goes to be a habit with some men, and they are hardly conscious when they are exercising it.

Why cannot a man show his wife that he appreciates her efforts to please him? Why cannot he praise the pudding of his wife as well as the cooking of her neighbor Smith?

Why cannot he speak kindly of her mince pie, and charitably of her sponge cake? Why cannot he say that the new hat is becoming to the face of the woman who loves him?

Kind words make his wife happy, and no decent man ought to withhold them, and he will find that the general run of affairs in his household will be smoother all around.

QUICK WIT SAVED BURGLAR

One Can Imagine Police Officer's Feelings When He Realized How He Had Been Fooled.

The up-to-date burglar is a quick-witted criminal, and nothing delights him more than to be "too many" for the constable, says the London Mail. To accomplish this he sometimes exhibits a good deal of wit and daring. Here is a case in point.

A constable, going the rounds of his beat a few nights ago, noticed a light in a house from which the family and servants had gone to the country. After pulling the bell several times a man put his head out of the bedroom window to say that he would be down in a few minutes. He came down in a dressing-gown and carrying a candle in his hand.

The constable explained his suspicion, whereupon the man stated that he had just run up to town to see that all was right. After chatting for a little, he invited the constable to have a glass of wine. He lit the dining room gas and produced a bottle of port. After they had drunk each other's health he let the constable out and bolted the door after him.

The man lost no time in getting the "swag" together, and left the house by another exit.

Highly Dramatic.

Backward and forward he paced, his eyes wild and rolling, his face haggard. As the minutes passed his agitation increased.

"Will she never come? Will she never come?" he wailed wildly. "Already it is 15 minutes past the appointed time, and yet she is not here!"

He pressed his hands to his fevered brow and waited. He tried to sit in vain, and still waited. He gazed sadly through the window and went on waiting.

At last! Ah! The sounds of little footsteps on the stairs. He turned to the door, eager, excited.

Yes, it was she! "You have come, then?" he gasped, dizzy with delight, as he grabbed his hat.

Yes, the stenographer had come back and it was now his turn to go out to luncheon.—Pittsburgh Chronicle Telegraph.

Humility's Power.

A woman once came to the cave of a sage who was renowned for his profound analysis of her sex.

"Father," said she, "let me sit at your feet awhile. I am but a woman—faulty and foolish and weak—but I would fain be the pupil of your learning and the disciple of your virtues."

And the sage, secure in his wisdom, consented. Then he laid himself down to sleep in the shade of a rock, out of the glare of the sun. When he awakened he was blindfolded and bound hand and foot—a prisoner to love.

He had protected himself against every feminine weapon except the most dangerous one—humility!—New York Evening Sun.

Beginning of Jury System.

The jury system with twelve men comes down to us from the time of viking invasions of England, those people customarily dividing their lands into cantons, and each canton into twelve portions under twelve chiefs. These passed judgment on the more serious criminal and civil cases and the custom has outlasted all the intermediate theories.

DADDY'S EVENING FAIRY TALE

by MARY GRAHAM BONNER

THE FAIRIES' TURKEY DINNER

The fairies were too shy to tell Nick and Nancy about their parties, their games and their frolics, but they used to send little special messengers to whisper them to daddy. No one could see these little messengers but they never missed whispering to daddy all that the fairies had been doing. As the fairies are very busy little people, daddy simply had to tell Nick and Nancy about them every evening just at bedtime.

"Tonight," began daddy, "I want to tell you about the turkey dinner party the fairies had today. I wonder if you think it could have been finer, for it was quite the newest kind of a turkey dinner you can imagine. And all the little fairies are just as tired and happy tonight from the fun and excitement as you two children are after a party."

"In the very first place of all they had a guest of honor. I don't believe you could ever, in a hundred years guess whom they chose, and as we haven't a hundred years to spend guessing riddles, I will have to tell you. It was Mr. Turkey Gobbler. He came with his chest way out, strutting proudly along, followed by some of his family. They called a turkey dinner party one which had Mr. Turkey Gobbler as their guest of honor—they would have been surprised if you had told them your idea of a turkey dinner was when you had turkey to eat."

"Well," said Mr. Turkey Gobbler, as he walked to the pine-wooded grove where the fairies were going to have their dinner party, "these silly people think they have paid me an insult when they have said I was proud and vain and—tough—not good to eat. Ha, ha, ha, as if I cared about being tough. In fact I like it!"

"Yes," he continued, "haven't I a perfect right to be vain? I am at a dinner party myself as a real guest of honor, admired for the way I walk and chatter, and not for the way I'm cooked on a platter. I almost could sing a song about that for joy!"

"And then, would you believe it, that silly old turkey began to stammer or shriek we would have called it, 'Gobbie, Gobbie, Gobbie,' and he thought it was a perfect song."

"Good health, my dears, that's the important thing. Of course it is well

That Silly Old Turkey Began to Sing, enough to have turkey dinners. I am proud that they have such parties named after our family, but just the same this is a very d-e-l-i-g-h-t-f-u-l change."

"You're a fine speechmaker," laughed the queen of the fairies, "but dinner is ready and we are all hungry."

"At that very moment a lovely tablecloth of new spring ferns was laid in front of all the invited guests, and such a feast as they did have of berries, nuts, and all sorts of other delicious goodies that the wood people like. And all through it the guest of honor ate and ate and ate, for he said:

"I can enjoy a turkey dinner when I'm the guest and not the food, and it is fine to be so big and strong that the silly people don't want you, ha, ha!"

BOYS AND GIRLS' QUARTERS

Room Set Apart at Smithsonian Institute for Exhibits to Interest the Young People.

At the Smithsonian Institution at Washington, one of the special rooms, which was the idea of Dr. Samuel Langley, is devoted entirely to exhibits designed to interest boys and girls. Doctor Langley knew that most museums are not arranged so that their exhibitions, even in natural science, can be seen and admired and studied by young folks. He decided that these things should be presented in a way that would appeal to children. So he superintended a special children's display. In a room used for the purpose all the wall cases which contain large numbers of birds arranged in classifications designed to draw the interest of youngsters are built low so that everything within them is plainly to be seen. The largest and smallest birds of prey, the eagle and elf owls and curious birds such as the toucan and umbrella bird are represented, while bright-colored and curious shaped shells, strange and interesting insects, specimens of minerals, fossils and coral formations are also shown. The children's room is said to be a great success and to attract a great many juvenile visitors from far and near.

An interesting event for those who waited for the cut prices. Quality and assortment always count in this store, but these reduced prices tell the story of big savings for you and your neighbor. Owing to the continued advance in woolens and the scarcity of woollen and other materials, we would urge you to see these suits right now. The styles are the best and among them are a good number of silk suits. All of them good, clear, dependable merchandise.

BEER WAGON DRIVER IS BURIED UNDER BOTTLES

When a delivery wagon belonging to a wholesale liquor house across the river from Monongahela was struck by a special street car in Main street Monongahela Friday morning, Benedetto Marsinnio was completely buried beneath the wreckage of the wagon and broken beer bottles. He was badly cut and was removed to his home. The car was on its way to the Methodist church to carry the members of the Junior league to Eldora park for their annual picnic. Division Superintendent C. R. Buchanan was aboard.

The first part of the week the headline attraction at the Palace theatre was the Douglass Family. These six clever performers entertained their audiences with first program of Scotch songs and dances and then with one introducing well known Irish melodies. The Bradfords a team of comedians also did pleasing work. On Wednesday evening Miss Bross the well known beauty first appeared in the latest pictorial melodies. The last part of the week three excellent acts were presented. The Sarnows entertained with a sensational novelty act. Mildred Cameron delighted her audiences with Banjo solos and Clark and Weston who were billed as "The Bell Boy and Girl," proved a team of clever comedians. Among the motion pictures shown was "Celeste" and "Playthings of the Gods" together with a number of comedies and weekly news pictorials.

At the Coyle theatre this week their appeared a program that was replace with good things for the moving picture enthusiast. Monday the Fox drama "Battle of Hells" was the leading film production, with William Farnum in the leading role. Naturally large crowds were attracted. The house was again packed on Tuesday night when Marguerite Clark a talented young miss who might be described as Mary Pickford's most charming rival, appeared in the ~~new~~ new play, "Make-Believe," a drama adapted from a drama of the same name. Mabel Taliferro and an all star cast made "The Snowbird." Wednesday a production of sterling merit and on Thursday a comedy of unusual attractiveness was filmed. It was "The Red Widow" with the famous John Barrymore in the leading role. Friday's feature is "The Huntress of Men" with Mary Fuller starred. For the coming week Manager Coyle has booked some exceedingly promising films.

Special features were numerous at the Majestic theatre the past week. On Monday the picture shown was "The Ordeal of Elizabeth." This was an unusual interesting drama in five parts. Lillian Walker one of the most favored of screen artists enacted the leading role and her interpretation of the part was pleasing. Tuesday, De Wolf Hopper was featured in "Don Quixote" an adaptation of Cervantes novel of the same name. This picture was released on the Triangle program. A comedy picture was also shown Tuesday. Robert Warwick, who is the screen idol of many appeared on Wednesday in "The Supreme Sacrifice." The scenes of the picture were in New York and many glimpses of real life on the East side of the great metropolis announcing "Into the Primitive" a picture featuring Kathlyn Williams for Saturday and "The Law Decides" a seven part Vitagraph for Monday.

Delightfully cooled by scientific fresh air system, which force the pure ozone into the house and carry away the used atmosphere, the New Davis Theatre, Pittsburgh's most magnificent playhouse, offers a resistless invitation to summer amusement seekers. The temperature is summer is always twenty degrees below the register of the thermometers on the streets and whatever the elements may do outside, inside the theatre one is always assured of a clean, comfortable, wholesome atmosphere, as well as a refined vaudeville show of the highest artistry. Mr. Davis for the forthcoming week is preparing a bill of nine headline acts in which all the elements of polite entertainment will be artistically welded. There will be music from the operas, light and classic, singing and dancing from musical comedy, a playlet from the dramas and physical acts from the circuses, all combined in a composite in just the right proportions. Willie Weston, America's foremost singer of character songs, is coming with a repertoire of new ditties written expressly for him. Mr. Weston has

One hundred and twenty-seven will be graduated from Southwestern State Normal School June 21. A good program has been prepared for commencement week, including the junior reception to the graduates, recitals, a "social" game, class play, Shakespearean pageant and the commencement address which will be delivered by Dr. Nathan C. Shaeffer of Harrisburg.

From Cherokee and North Cherokee the following students will be graduated: Claire Campbell, Johanna Estenfelder, Margaret Hackert, Elizabeth Hall, Sadie Herche, Hazel Lutes, Lillian Shannon, Hazel Watson and Kathleen White.

Diamonds are supposed to be "pure carbon." At least the authorities tell us that such is the case. The genesis of the diamond remains one of the unsolved problems of science with the balance of the evidence favoring the theory of vegetable origin.

FLOWERS HAVE FOOD VALUE

Scientific Men Have Proved That a Great Many of Them Are Edible and Delicious.

The food of flowers is a matter just beginning to interest the scientific world. Violets are said to contain considerable nourishment. They formed the basis of a refreshing drink and in other forms figured conspicuously in the feasts of the ancient Persians. The modern confectioner has found them singular.

The old Turkish confections made of rose leaves are believed delicious. The scientific men have discovered that a handful of rose petals imparts a flavor of unparalleled delicacy to desserts of many kinds.

For those who do not care for sweets, the variegated nasturtium offers delights to the palate. It may be used as a filling for sandwiches, mixed judiciously with other materials in salad. Its delicious pungency appeals to the epicure, while physicians say it aids digestion.

A favorite Italian dish consists of fried squash blossoms. When properly prepared this food is both appetizing and nourishing. The yellow blossoms of the common field pumpkin may be cooked in the same way, and to some tastes are even more pleasing.

DECLINE IN FRENCH POETRY

Prose Has Superseded It in the Favor of the People, Is an Opinion Given.

It is a fact that the French mind uses prose as its readier instrument, and it is also a fact that at this present moment, when the French spirit reasserts itself, poetry is far in the background compared with what it was at the beginning of Romanticism, when Hugo, Lamartine, Musset and Vigny occupied the front part of the stage.

There are more poets than there were at any period of French literature, and their average work is superior to what it was in the nineteenth century; but poetry is not popular, and the best known poets, the most successful—say, Henri de Regnier and the Comtesse de Noailles—do not reach the twentieth part of Victor Hugo's public.

COLORED CROSS IN SKY.

There was considerable excitement about this section all day over the appearance in the western sky of a rainbow-colored cross, and Bible students have been searching for something that would enlighten them on the matter. The Book of Revelation has been scanned and ministers called up, but up to this time the sign has not been interpreted satisfactorily.

The superstitious naturally foresee continued wars all over the world, and, within 1,000 years, the end of the world. Those who saw it, as the sun came up, say it was a perfect cross of brilliant colors.—Woodbury (N. J.) Dispatch Philadelphia Record.

TOO DEEP FOR HIM.

"No," murmured the man who occasionally lets out an audible thought, "I can't understand it." "Can't understand what?" queried the party who had overheard. "Why a woman will weep at the imaginary woes of a stage hero and laugh at the real woes of her husband," explained he of the noisy thoughts.

IMPOLITE GEORGE.

Caller—That's a very good cake, my dear; did you make it yourself? Hostess—No, I didn't, and I'm never going to make another cake. George was perfectly horrid about the last one. He broke a tooth over it, and said I ought to be making munitions.

MUCH THE SAME.

"My life," said her husband, "is like an open book." "That's right," replied his wife. "I can only see two pages at once."

OH, PIFFLE!

"What is woman's mission in life?" asked the suffragette. "Sub-mission," growled the scanty-haired bachelor in reply.

ENOUGH FOR A SQUARE MEAL.

Butcher—Will you have a round steak, ma'am? Mrs. Youngbride—I don't care what shape it is, so it's tender.

GINGLES' JINGLES

THE OLD OAKEN BUCKET.

The old oaken bucket appealed to us strongly, the iron-bound bucket we never shall forget, the railing around the old well that contained it supported our features the day that we met. She tripped from the house over the lawn, oh, so nimbly, an old wooden pail she had swung from her arm, the old oaken bucket sped down on its errand—romantic surroundings caused it no alarm. How fondly I reeled it again to the surface, how gladly I fell for a chance to assist, a chance to be useful, to render some service—this chance for a million I would not have missed. Oh, would that the same strong desire to serve others would never relax, never loosen its hold, and that to our wives we would be as when sweethearts we hauled up the iron-bound bucket of old. All nature would smile and rejoice in her gladness, the charms of the past would again come to life, if we would live over the days of our courtship—and make, as we should, a sweetheart of our Lein H. Gingles wife.

PLAN FOR HEALTH INSURANCE

Important States Are Taking Up the Matter Since Its Importance Has Been Recognized.

Compulsory insurance of the work-er against the chances of sickness is the reform now in the order of the day. The institution is already established in Germany, Austria, Hungary, Luxembourg, Norway, Holland, Great Britain, Russia, Roumania, Serbia and Greece. When a social reform has won success in Russia and the Balkan states one may suppose that it is about to receive a hearing in the United States of America. And now three of our chief industrial states, New York, Massachusetts and New Jersey, are discussing sickness insurance bills under the more optimistic name, "health insurance."

These bills spring largely from a common source and are almost identical in terms, says the New Republic. If they pass, the manual worker or any other employee with a salary under $1,200 a year will be assured medical and surgical attendance and nursing through a period of sickness extending to six months; medical and surgical supplies up to a cost of $50 and money benefits equivalent to two-thirds of his wages for a period not longer than six months. In return for his advantages under the law he will be forced to contribute, in the ratio of his earnings, toward two-fifths of the aggregate cost of insurance. His employer will contribute another two-fifths and the remaining fifth will come out of the state budget.

FISH CULTURE SUCCEEDS.

Systematic attempt to establish the quinnat salmon in New Zealand waters was first made in 1899. It was decided to concentrate efforts on one river on the east coast of the South Island—the Waitaki river. For several years after that large importations of ova were made, and in 1907 it was found that the fish were returning from the sea to spawn. Since then their numbers have been found to be increasing yearly, and the inspector now states that the number of running fish this year was much greater than since the commencement of the experiment. It was also found that there was a large run of fish up the Rangitara river, about seventy miles north of the Waitaki, and some had found their way even farther north. The largest quinnat salmon yet caught in New Zealand weighed over thirty-two pounds.

TOO FEW.

Hub (during the spat)—I don't believe in parading my virtues. Wife—I don't see how you could. It takes quite a number to make a parade.

OUR GUESS.

"Speaking of operas," remarks a contemporary, "what did William Tell?" "Something funny, evidently, for it made Lohengrin."

THE RIGHT ANSWER.

Professor—What three words are used most among college students? Weary Fresh—I don't know. Professor—Correct.

Prepared for Real Life

The course at Indiana Normal equips one to earn a good living by teaching. This practical school inspires true American ambition; it builds character, self-reliance, strength. Actual teaching experience is a part of the course.

Pennsylvania State of Normal School Indiana, Pa.

A School of Ambition and Success.

Life at Indiana is healthful and happy. The air is clear and crisp; the home life is exceptional in comfort and cheer; the days are filled with interesting work and brightened by the company of congenial teachers and fellow-students. $200 covers all expenses for one year—excepting books—for those preparing to teach. Others pay $260.

In connection with the Normal School are—The Indiana School of Business, John E. Smith, Principal, and The Indiana Conservatory of Music—Resford D. Colburn, Director.—two of the best equipped schools of their kind in this country.

42nd Year Opens September 12th, 1916. For the new catalog—a beautifully illustrated book of 128 pages—address the Principal DR. JAMES E. AMENT, Indiana, Pa.
